PRIVACY POLICY

Effective date: 2 November 2026 | Last updated: 2 November 2026

When you visit, we may collect technical information such as your IP address, device and browser details, pages viewed and cookie identifiers. If you contact us or use our training, shop, room-rental or careers services, we may collect information you submit, such as contact details, registrations, orders, bookings or applications. We use this information to respond and provide services, process transactions, manage courses and bookings, assess applications, improve and secure our services, and meet legal obligations.

We use cookies and similar technologies to operate the site and understand its use. Where applicable, they may also support marketing measurement or personalization. You can manage optional categories through the privacy settings available on the site. We send marketing only where permitted, and you can opt out.

We may share relevant information with staff and service providers who help us operate the website and deliver requested services, process payments and deliveries, or support training and events. We may also share information with professional advisers or authorities when required. Some providers may process data outside Singapore; we take steps required by law to ensure comparable protection. We keep data only as long as needed and use reasonable safeguards.

Subject to the PDPA, you may request access to or correction of your data, or withdraw consent. Contact our Data Protection Officer using the details below.
